Play Ball!

Tomorrow at one-thirty the above familiar cry, followed by "Robber," "Thief!" and "So's your old man!" will ring out at the Abalone League Ball Park in Carmel Woods, and the sixth year of Abalone League ball will be howlingly under way.

Teams have been chosen, schedule has been made, and the following veteran players have been drafted as captains: Joseph Hooper, Frederick Bechdolt, Colonel Fletcher Dutton, and Charles Halstead Yates. Thus will do battle the banking forces back of Mr. Hooper and the writing contingent behind Mr. Bechdolt, while the martial forces of the community will stand shoulder to shoulder with the brave Colonel in an effort to stave off the vested land interests rallying around Halstead Yates.

It is rumored that the battle cry of the Hooper team will be "Ten per cent," to which the Bechdolt nine will give answer with "Ten cents a word," with Colonel Dutton falling back on the good old army aphorism of "Give 'em hell," and Mr. Yates, journeying farther toward collegiate youth, will employ the succint phrase of "Hold 'em, Yale." It is further rumored, rumor being especially rife these days, that the captains are losing no little sleep in thinking up team names, the Colonel favoring dance motives, as Charleston, Texas Tommy, Bunny Hug and The Savannah Creep, while Mr. Yates is putting in for a more local atmosphere along the lines of shops, as Cabbages and Kings, Game Cock, Cinderella and Ye Comfy Shoppy.

For the bettering of the game, the committee has decided on several changes, the most important being that of the field position of the umpire. Heretofore, through someone's odd conception of things, the umpire has stood directly behind the pitcher's box, but thanks to the committy he will no longer be forced to remain in so obviously faulty a place, but can now take a seat on the bench along the first base line, and there, surrounded by admiring friends, can call the plays as these baseball sharpshooters may decide.

At the conclusion of nine weeks' playing, novelty prizes will be given, among them being butterfly nets to all right fielders having a record of more than three flies dropped in succession, as well as gifts to the most rabid rooter and to the loudest baseball lawyer. Umpires are to be drawn by lot, refusal to serve being subject to instant banishment among the lupine bushes of outer right field.

Talbert Josselyn has been called upon to serve as a local judge Landis and has already been seen talking with several insurance companies. An amusing feature of the first game, and possibly others, will be furnished by Carmel's latest baseball addition, Mr. Frank Sheridan, who, during the progress of play, will broadcast a humorous set of rules.

From 3 to 5 o'clock this afternoon a reception will be held at All Saints rectory in honor of Dr. Noel Porter of San Jose, Archdeacon of the Diocese of California. Tomorrow morning he will preach at All Saints.

Hatton Fields

Hatton Fields, Carmel's extension residence tract, which has been in preparation these many moons, is at last open to home-site buyers.

The office of the Carmel Land Company, which purchased the property from the Hatton estate, is located in a stucco building, just completed, on Ocean avenue, between Dolores and Lincoln streets. Ernest Schweninger, secretary of the company, is in charge of the office at sales manager, and J. K. Turner is associated with him. Peter Mawdsley will be in charge of the accounts. Paul Flanders, president of the company, will also have his office in the building.

The contract for the road work of Tract Number One, which goes on the market first, has been awarded to W. A. Dontanville of Salinas. The work has already begun and is scheduled for completion in sixty days. There will be two miles of winding roads in Tract One. The specifiications call for first class gravel roads with concrete culverts and culvert headwalls.

Building sites in the first tract number ninety-nine, and the lots range in size from one-third of an acre to nearly three acres. Although more than half of this first tract is in the forest, many lots afford a broad view from the ocean to far points in the Carmel valley, and including the Carmel river mouth, Carmel Mission, Point Lobos, and the Santa Lucia mountains.

Hatton Fields was laid out with the express purpose in mind of affording to and preserving for home owners a degree of seclusion which Carmel proper enjoyed in the beginning, but is in danger of losing because of the small size of some building lots. Hatton Fields sales contracts carry an agreement against the subdividing of lots, while moderate building restrictions protect future residents against architectural monstrosities.

The first purchaser in Hatton Fields was Perry Newberry. Newberry said: "We are going to live in Hatton Fields because we find there the seclusion that is no longer obtainable at a moderate price in Carmel proper."

Among the local stockholders in the Carmel Land Company, in addition to Schweninger and Flanders, are Harry Leon Wilson, Cahrles King Van Riper, Fred Ruhl, and Carmel Martin.

ARTS & CRAFTS TO PRESENT DRAMA BY FLAVIN

The Arts and Crafts Theatre will present "The Children of the Moon," by Martin Flavin, on March 19, 20, and 21. This gripping drama has a particular interest for Monterey Peninsula audiences. It was not only written at "Spindrift," the Flavin estate a few miles down the coast from Carmel Highlands, but he laid the scene of the play there, and put into it all the atmosphere of this wildest section of the California coast line— the ceaseless boom of the surf against the towering cliffs, and the familiar fog. "The Children of the Moon" was one of the notable productions in New York a year ago.

Rapid progress is being made on the Monte Verde - Sixth Street addition to Pine Inn. Contractor M. J. Murphy has a large force of men on the job.

School Dedication

That the people have a very sincere, practical interest in their public school was made evident last Saturday afternoon when more than three hundred men, women and children gathered in the new school building for the dedication exercises.

In the assemblage were fathers and mothers, graduates of the school, who now have children of their own in attendance.

The program opened in the patio on the west front of the school with the raising of the Stars and Stripes and the singing of the national anthem, led by the band of the Eleventh Cavalry from the Monterey Presidio.

Owing to the unsettled weather the balance of the program was held in the large assembly room in the basement of the new structure.

Dr. Alfred E. Burton, president of the school board, presided, and seated on the platform with him were the other members of the board, Mrs. Florence M. Spoehr and Miss Ruth Huntington, and Professor Samuel S. Seward of Stanford University, John J. Donovan of Oakland, and Miss Mary Powers, principal of the school.

Dr. Burton made the opening address, which was almost entirely devoted to a delineation of the many desirable features incorporated in the attractive edifice. There are no cross-lights, sanitary arrangements are the most modern, an assembly hall is provided, playground space is ample, modern heating and lighting systems have been installed.

At the conclusion of his remarks, Dr. Burton introduced John J. Donovan, architect, who designed the building. Felicitation was the theme of Donovan's address. He complimented the school board on its initiative and desire to merit the public's approbation; he complimented the contractors, Messrs. Finnigan and Herndon, for their strict adherence to the specifications; he had a kind word for the men who did the actual labor and the foreman, James A. Kenealy, who directed them. And lastly, he had a good word for the Irish—Donovan, Finnegan, and Kenealy.

Then followed the principal address of the day by Professor Seward. It was a scholarly, if somewhat rambling, effort. The speaker emphasized the need of outside co-operation in educational work. "We must not leave everything to the school and the university," said he. "We need the assistance of the home and other good influences to achieve the best results."

Professor Seward made a plea for a more catholic type of patriotism, a patriotism less provincial, broader, and based upon intelligence. The spread-eagle type of patriotism is based upon a narrow concept of facts, inferred the speaker. And to illustrate his point, Professor Seward quoted the Stanford motto, "Let the Winds of Freedom Blow." "But," said he, "They do not have to blow a perfect hurricane."

The chairman then announced that the ceremonies would close with the singing of "America," and said he, evidently falling in with Professor Seward's suggestion, "You may sing 'God Save the King,' if you wish."

Much regret was expressed because County Superintendent James Force was not present.

Trustees Meet

Trustee Henry P. Larouette started something at last Monday night's meeing of the city board when he asked his fellow-trustees, "What are we going to do about these encroachments on city streets?" He referred to cases in various parts of the city, where, it is alleged, garages and dwellings had been erected on city streets. There was a whole lot of discussion about each case. It was found that in some instances it was possible to make adjustments or that the city's rights were not contested. In other instances there is likely to be action to quiet title. The matter is in the hands of City Attorney Argyll Campbell.

An application was presented by the Carmel Land Co., owners of Hatton Fields, for permission to construct about 300 feet of road through Paradise Park, thus connecting the newly paved Carpenter street with the Hatton Fields tract. Permission was granted subject to establishment of the official grade, approval of the specifications by the Superintendent of Streets, and consent of abutting property owners.

At a cost of $150 a year, the trustees have taken out accident insurance on forty men of the Carmel Fire Department. Fire Chief Robert G. Leidig reported the appointment of Everett A. Littlefield as Assistant Fire Chief. On the recommendation of the chief the city will purchase a test pressure guage.

Mayor William T. Kibbler, having in mind the widening and improvement of San Carlos highway, called attention to the fact that the state highway commission now had jurisdiction on the highway passing through Carmel, and that possibly the work would be done by this body. It was suggested also that perhaps the county board of supervisors would undertake the work. It was decided that, owing to lack of State funds, more speedy action might be expected from the county body, and Supervisor J. L. D. Roberts will first be consulted in the matter.

Providing for payment on the installment play, equipment for the street department will be purchased at a cost of approximately $1560. The equipment includes a watering cart, a grader and a scraper.

By a unanimous vote the salary of City Attorney Argyll Campbell was increased to $50 a month.

A thorough audit of the city accounts, which has not been had for several years, was ordered. The president of the board was authorized to employ a competent man to do the work.

RADIO DEVELOPMENT IN THE HANDS OF CONGRESSMAN FREE

A Californian, Congressman Arthur M. Free, of this district, is to play a very important part in the development of radio in the United States. He has been chosen chairman of the Radio Committee of the House of Representatives.

Some radio legislation was considered by the last Congress, but after many hearings and much deliberation, at the suggestion of the best radio experts available, it was decided to leave the matter over to this Congress and in the meantime to observe what developed in the industry. During the year a system of near chaos has developed. There are only a limited number of wave lengths, or frequencies, as they are called, to be allocated for broadcasting. If too many stations used the same wave length interference results.

All agree that the future of radio depends on satisfying the listeners, for without them there would be no incentive for radio broadcasting. Applications for wave lengths for broadcasting are coming in at the rate of two a day as stations are springing up everywhere. Through international agreement six bands of wave lengths, or frequencies, were reserved for Canadian broadcasters, in consideration of which Canada permits the United States broadcasters to use all the rest of the wavelengths.

A broadcasting pirate in the United States has now taken, without permission, one of the Canadian wavelengths. This may lead to serious complications; for if Canada thinks the United States is not acting in good faith her people may use wave lengths used by United States Broadcasters and cause greater confusion.

Free is very decided about several things, among which are (1) that the ether must be held to belong to the public, (2) that all broadcasting is interstate commerce and must be regulated as such by the Federal Government, (3) that broadcasting must not become a monopoly, (4) that the listening public are entitled to protection from selfish broadcasters who, if permitted to do so, would destroy by too great interference all the pleasure of the listeners in.

The Radio Committee is now shaping up a bill which will be submitted to the Congress in a few days for the regulation of radio, and it is hoped this regulation will clear up the situation in the United States.

ELECTRIC STORE ANNOUNCES OPENING

Again, the confidence in the prosperity of Carmel manifests itself in the opening of a most attractive electrical store on Ocean avenue near Dolores, by Carl S. Rohr.

Mr. Rohr has a thorough knowledge of electricity and its various applications to city, to industry and to the home.

The new store is in a convenient shopping location, and will handle such well-known products as the Thor automatic household ironer and other household labor savers, including a line of electric lighting fixtures of unusual design. Rohr has been appointed an agent for Edison Mazda Lamps and is also an authorized "Check" Seal electrical contractor and retailer.

Next Thursday is visitors' day, and it is expected that many will visit this new and beautiful store. As an inducement, a special sale on electric irons is planned.

The heavy rains of the early part of the week and later did considerable damage in and about Carmel and vicinity. In Pebble Beach, at the Highlands, and in Carmel Woods, many trees were uprooted and road and lawn washouts will require some time for repair and restoration.

Last Sunday morning services in the Carmel Mission church were impossible, owing to the fact that the flow of storm water down the hills surrounding the historic building worked through crevices in the stone work and flooded the ground floor.

Damage to private property in Carmel was confined mostly to gardens, roofs and basements. The streets suffered also, especially those running east and west. The flow of water on these streets, even when it rains moderately, is such that curbs and gutters are absolutely essential to insure the permanence of the surface of the roadway.

Worthy of comment is the fact that notwithstanding the heavy downpour there was remarkably little suspension of light, power and telephone service.

About five inches of rain fell during the week, bringing the total for the season considerably in excess of last year's fall at this time.

CARMEL PRIZE WINNER

At the thirteenth annual exhibition of the work of Chicago artists, now in progress in the "Windy City," Mrs. Jessie Arms Botke of this city was awarded the leading $500 prize. Her picture was entitled "The Uninvited Guest."

Mrs. Frederick W. Clampett and daughter, Mrs. William Shuman and small daughter of San Francisco, occupied the Campbell house here this week.

A private view was recently given of the water color sketches of sand dunes and sea made by Miss Cora Wilcox of Chicago, who has been visiting here. She is a commercial artist.

GARAGE CHANGES HANDS

The Wermuth Garage on Ocean avenue was purchased last week by T. O. Harthorn and on Monday last the new owner took possession. The purchase included not only garage equipment and machinery, but a considerable stock of parts and tires.

Tyrell Harthorn was formerly in the garage business here. For some time prior to returning to Carmel he was connected with the sales department of the Moreland Motor Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Thurston, artist and writer from Pasadena, were here for several days recently.

SESQUICENTENNIAL
HISTORY
SKETCHES
The one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence will be observed by the Sesquicentennial International Exposition, which opens at Philadelphia, June 1, 1926.

THE AMERICAN FLAG

When the question of selecting a suitable flag for the Sesquicentennial International Exposition arose it became at once evident that because of the nature of the event which the Exposition was to celebrate only one standard could properly be used. This was the flag of the United States of America.

With a few exceptions, our flag is the oldest in the world. It has stood substantially the same for nearly 150 years, while in other lands national emblems have changed as empires have fallen and vast political upheavals brought with them new banners to claim the allegiance of the populace.

Contrary to general belief the flag of the United States was not an inspired creation. It was formed from the continental Union flag by substituting in the canton a circlet of thirteen stars for the two crosses—St. George's and St. Andrew's—of Britain. The stripes were already there.

George Washington described its making thus: "We take the star from Heaven; the red from our mother country, separating it by white stripes, thus showing that we have separated from her; and the white stripes shall go down to posterity representing liberty."

In the coat of arms of Washington there were, curiously, both stars and stripes represented, and many historians have sought to establish a connection between this and the conception of the flag. Except for the coincidence, not a scrap of evidence has ever been discovered to support this theory, however, attractive as it is.

It was a year after the siguing of the Declaration of Independence that the first legislation for the flag was enacted. On June 14, 1777, now celebrated by us as Flag Day, Congress, sitting in Philadelphia, adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved, That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; and the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

This was the first official step toward the adoption of our national emblem. The resolution was officially published in August and the design first promulgated by Congress on September 3rd. Where it was first displayed is still a question of dispute, but it flew in the breeze at the battle of Brandywine on September 11th, at Germantown on October 4th, and in all subsequent encounters. The connection of Betsy Ross with it is a beloved legend enshrined in the hearts of school children.

In the spring of 1795, two more states having been added to the Union, the circle of thirteen stars was changed to a square of fifteen to include the new states. In this form it remained for twenty-three years, and so it was when it inspired Francis Scott Key to write the immortal anthem of the Star Spangled Banner which has become inseparable from it in the thought of Americans.

The last modification of the flag was in 1818 when, the number of states having grown to twenty, and additional ones foreseen in the future, President Monroe signed an act to the effect that every new state admitted to the Union would be recognized on the 4th of July following its admission by the addition of a new star to the flag.

The bill was signed on April 14, 1818, and in the 108 years that have passed twenty-eight more stars have appeared in the blue field, but otherwise our flag has not changed.

An allotment of maintenance funds for the improvement on bridges and culverts on the Carmel-Bib Sur county highway, recently taken over for maintenance, has been approved by the California Highway Commission. The work will be under the direction of Division V.

STORM CAUSES ELECTRIC SERVICE INTERRUPTION

Three trucks with line crews were kept busy by the Coast Valleys Gas & Electric Company in the vicinity of Carmel last Tuesday during the severe wind and rain storm. Broken wires caused by the falling of pine trees in close proximity to the line were responsible for most of the trouble. The crews worked through the height of the storm and succeeded in keeping the service into Carmel in good order with the exception of about an hour's time. The crews stayed on the job until the tests from the Monterey substation showed that the lines were again in good order. Service was restored to normal by eight o'clock in the evening and no further trouble was experienced.

The worst damage was done near the Crocker residence, where a large pine tree fell across the lines and carried them to the ground with it, completely breaking the service.

BOYS' CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

The Carmel Boys' Club held their quarterly election on Wednesday evening, with the following results: President, Sedgwick Rowntree; Vice-President, Glenn Leidig; Secretary, Scott Douglass.

In celebration of Glenn Leidig's birthday, his mother treated the boys to ice cream and cake.

"THE TORCH BEARERS"

In "The Torch Bearers," the three-act comedy which will be presented at the Arts and Crafts Theatre on Friday and Saturday evenings, February 12 and 13, George Kelly has taken a professional's fling at amateur actors and the Little Theatre in general. One might almost think that Mr. Kelly is the humorist who said that every time a wood-pecker leaves its nest it returns to find it inhabited by a Little Theatre.

"The Torch Bearers" was a season's laughing success in New York. John Corbin said—or perhaps it was Stark Young—or possibly it was Alan Dale—but certainly it was not Alexander Woolcott—that after he had heard the curtain speech of the second act of "The Torch Bearers", he really ought to have stopped going to the theatre, for never again could he hope to hear so good a line.

In the twelve characters of the play, Mr. Kelly has used a combination of types which at one time or another have made miserable the life of the producer whose players are amateurs. There is the outsider, who is a cynic as to Art—with a capital A. And opposed to him is a group, including his wife, who are the insiders and full of faith and the farcial ideas of acting found everywhere amongst amateurs—except in Carmel. With the skill of the experienced playwright, he shows them first as they really are, and then as they try to be when they act. He turns them inside out, holds their pretensions up to view with most hilarious effects, and then unexpectedly gives them lines that throw a spot light to the heart of the subject.

He introduces his people, then leads them deftly to rehearsal of a scene in the play they are to produce the following night and brings down the curtain with a line that shows the desperate earnestness with which they are following Art.

Amusing as this first act is, the second carries the fun to a still higher pitch, for where the rehearsal showed them trying at the play, the second act shows them trying it on their audience. The set is an unusual one—the "back stage" that every actor knows, with the players making their entrances upon a mimic stage through a door that gives glimpses of footlights and a dim auditorium from which come periodical bursts of applause.

No amateur who sees this act but knows how true to life are the mishaps that combine to make a hilariously funny wreck artistically of this mimic play. Indeed, there are a number of Carmelites who have a poignant remembrance of a combination of catastrophes that accompanied the production of a local play, not so very long ago. First, the leading man was called away by serious illness. Then flu disposed of his successor less than ten days before the performance.

In quick succession came an automobile accident to another player that sent him to the hospital for four days, with several cracked ribs, and would have kept anybody else there for a month; a sudden and unexpected appendicitis upsetment in the family of another, and, crowning jinx of all, less than a half hour before the curtain was to rise, the leading lady sent word that she was very ill with flu. The play went on, thanks to the resourcefulness of two Carmel players—but in comparison with this series of mishaps, the little ones concocted by Mr. Kelly for the demoralization of his characters seem funnier still, because they are taken so tragically.

The third act picks up the pieces, takes an unexpected and startling turn, and whirls the action on to an unforseen ending.

In spite of having his fling at amateurs and the Little Theatre idea in general, Mr. Kelly has done it in such a manner, and with such types that every non-professional group of players can smugly say, "WE don't do things that way," and then produce Mr. Kelly's play as impressively as they can. Mr. Kelly has never gone on record as to whether he considers this popularity of the play with amateurs a blessing financially — or a boomerang artistically. No matter—"The Torch Bearers" adds to the hilarity of nations—and as somebody has said, the primary idea of a theatre is to amuse.

The players are as follows, in the order of their appearance:

Jenny ..... Jane Condit
Mr. Frederick Ritter ..... George Ball
Mrs. Paula Ritter ..... Vivian Lindgren
Mrs. J. Duro Pampinelli ..... Louise Walcott
Mr. Spindler ..... Winsor Josselyn
Mrs. Nelly Fell ..... Alberta Langley
Teddy Spearing ..... Stuart Walcott
Mr. Ralph Twiller ..... Frank Work
Mr. Huxley Hossefrosse ..... Wm. Titmas
Miss Florence McCrickett ..... Marjory Safe
Stage Manager ..... Frank Murphy

The D. W. Call house on Carmel Point will soon be ready for occupancy. Mrs. Call was down from Los Gatos a few days ago to observe the progress of the building.

SOUNDS A BIT LIKE CARMEL

That New York State has a community in many respects similar to Carmel is indicated in a letter recently received by S. A. R. from Jo Lemon, well-known black-and-white artist.

The letter, in part, is as follows:

Woodstock, N. Y., Jan. 29, 1926.

"California seems to agree with you from the tenor of your communications and I suppose you are reveling in the etherical mildness of a Carmel winter. Meanwhile we are up here in the mountains in the midst of a peppy snow storm—it's a corker and the hills are beautiful. I am tickled pink to know you are doing well and that you are so pleasantly situated. Your booklet on Carmel with the account of the vicissitudes of a camping trip honeymoon gave us all a good laugh. You must have an interesting and jolly little colony about you from what you write. It sounds good to me.

"Daughter decided to get married. She fell in love with an artist, a fine chap who is doing well. They went to Woodstock for the summer. We visited them and liked the place so much that the following summer, last year, we moved up and here we are!

"Woodstock is twelve miles from a railroad and lies in the mountains back of Kingston. It is a colony of artists, writers and musicians—many of the bunch are of international repute. The village proper is almost all studios and for a radius of ten miles they are scattered through the hills thick as flies. We live in a roomy bungalow and back of it about a hundred yards is the garage and my big studio—the studio is a dandy. Also we have just bought a new sedan, work is coming in and again we are sitting pretty.

"On the whole this is a remarkable place. It is controlled by the artists and absolute freedom from convention is the result. Each Saturday during the summer we have what is called the Market Fair on the village green. Booths decked out with streamers and awning of gay colors sell handwrought jewelry, pottery, statuettes, hand-woven fabrics, etchings, paintings, etc. Lots of good things to eat and drink. Everyone appears in costume and the resulting carnival effect is startlingly picturesque—a bit like the New Orleans Mardigras only with a more foreign air. Here you will see a jolly friar busy shaking cocktails for a harlequin and a dancing girl with a State Trooper standing by trying to declare himself in— there a band of Tyrolean singers, perhaps led by a Chinese Mandarin followed by an Italian peasant with a dancing bear—and so on, just a hodge podge of jollity. We have two theaters. One an open air arrangement on the mountain side for Greek stuff, interpretative dancing, spectacular things—the other is a huge rustic affair seating twelve hundred.

"This latter has a stage the equal of most Broadway houses, lighting effects and all. Plays written here as well as others that Broadway managers will not take the financial risk on are produced. The big stars from the city are anxious to give their services free and the orchestra is composed usually of well known composers and soloists who are willing to play second violin or anything for the pleasure of being allowed to participate. Do not get the idea that it is all fun and foolishness. Woodstock has a vast army of hard workers but when they romp they know how. The alcoholic thirst is assuaged by excellent 7% beer, the real oldtime stuff, and pure apple brandy distilled right here. Added to this is the best that the bootleggers can obtain. It flows without hindrance at moderate prices. Like any community we have a few soaks, a large percentage who take a drink socially and a lot who never touch it. The individual follows his own sweet will without criticism and the resulting temperance is a slap in the face to prohibition. It is an interesting place, different and pleasing."

THE SECRET CONFESSIONS OF A CARMEL FLAPPER

By A. P.

CHARACTERS

BERTHA—merely a means of getting places; manufactured by the man who makes the Lincoln.

ANT—papa's sister and mama's sister-in-law. Height, 4 ft.

LESTER—stray kitty which ant has legally adopted.

LITTLE ME—one of the modern generation. Height, 5 ft. 11.

7:00 p.m.—Me and ant start for movies in Bertha.

7:05 p.m.—Bertha balks at Ocean Avenue hill. Show ant how to get behind and push. Very few people can drive up steep hill, but anyone can push.

7:06 p.m.—Reach top of hill where it is level. Bertha will not budge.

7:07 p.m.—Ant says "I knew it,—out of gas, again."

7:08 p.m.—Light match. Gas guage registers ½ full.

7:09 p.m.—Ant suggests flat tire. All tires in perfect condition.

7:10 p.m.—Ant thinks battery worn out.

7:11 p.m.—Go into Pine Inn and phone garage. Night watchman says mechanic running picture machine at Manzanita Theatre. Will get another mechanic from Pacific Grove right away.

7:15 p.m.—Hear mysterious noise from interior of Bertha. Think it about to explode. Only ant snoring lustily.

7:20 p.m.—Rain begins to fall. Where is mechanic?

7:25 p.m.—Rain falls in torrents, thunder crashes like devil, ant snores. No mechanic.

7:30 p.m.—Remember am somewhat mechanical myself. Put tire cover over marcel. Go out into night. Open Bertha's hood. Engine is full of rain water.

7:35 p.m.—Ask ant to cease snoring and push Bertha home while I steer. Very few people can steer well thru storm, but anyone can push.

7:50 p.m.—Reach home. Find telegram. Cousin Sadie from Salinas coming tomorrow for month's visit. Ant grief stricken, goes to bed.

7:55 p.m.—Go to kitchen. Will make prune whip for Cousin Sadie. Am just breaking egg when hear great noise from library.

7:56 p.m.—Ant screams "storm has blown glass out of window. Help,—help."

7:57 p.m.—Think maybe it is burglar. Send ant to find out. Very few people can make prune whip, but anyone can look for burglars.

7:58 p.m.—Ant has hysterics. Not window nor burgler, either, but Lester, ant's protege. Lester endeavored to drink from antique flower vase,—Ming jar of third dynasty. Lester and third dynasty in pieces on library floor.

7:59 p.m.—Ant says "good night." Return to prune whip. Rich contralto fills tiny kitchen. Am singing something new and different.

8:00 p.m.—Ant cries "Save me, save me,—am drowning."

8:01 p.m.—Find roof over ant's bed leaking torrents.

8:02 p.m.—Run up town to drug store. Purchase yard and a halp of tin roofing.

8:20 p.m.—Home again. Ant snoring under umbrella. Wake ant up. Very few people can mend roofs but anyone can hold candle.

8:25 p.m.—Ant clutches ladder and holds candle. Rain puts candle out.

8:26 p.m.—Ant goes for lantern.

8:27 p.m.—Fail to see hole in roof. Nail tin where hole ought to be.

8:28 p.m.—Ant says "good night." Return to prune whip. Now can work in peace.

8:29 p.m.—Am breaking sixth and last egg. Ant calls "help, murder, police. Rain took curl out of hair. Where are curl papers?

8:30 p.m.—Put ant to bed with curling iron. Return to prune whip.

8:35 p.m.—Ant yells "Yoo Hoo,—surprise,—roof still leaks,—water dropping on end of nose."

8:36 p.m.—Remember am somewhat of amateur detective. Discover why roof leaks. Not roof at all, but Lester, playing he is circus clown and gas jet is trapeze.

8:37 p.m.—Set fire to Lester's tail and whiskers with curling iron.

8:38 p.m.—Run back to drug store with roofing. Will return it and get twenty-eight cents back.

8:45 p.m.—Rush happily home. Now to finish prune whip in peace and quiet.

8:45 p.m.—Find Lester has already finished prune whip and is licking chops over same.

8:47 p.m.—Cut Lester into nineteen pieces. Will have hash tomorrow. Just happened to think Cousin Sadie doesn't like prunes anyway.

Very few people can make good kitty hash, but anyone can make prune whip.

WHAT THE HOME OWES YOUR CHILDREN

God send us a little home,
To come back to when we roam,
Low walls and fluted tiles,
Wide windows, a view for miles.
One picture on each wall,
Not many things at all.
God send us a little ground,
Tall trees standing round,
Homely flowers in brown sod,
Overhead, thy stars, O God.
God bless, when winds blow,
Our home and all we know.

—Florence Bone

ISN't that just what we would all like best—" a little home to come back to when we roam?" Of course, each of our homes would be different; some of us wouldn't care so much about the "fluted tiles," or we'd want not "one picture on the wall," but many of them. But we'd all love it because it was ours.

You don't have to own a home though to make it yours. While nothing gives quite such a feeling of security and well-being as knowing that it belongs to you, a real home-maker can make a real home anywhere, and out of the very barest necessities.

Homes are so important, much more so than schools or churches or colleges. And no true home-maker thinks of her beautiful labor of making a home as just tasks to be done over and over again, day in and day out. She thinks of it as hours and minutes and days invested in the happiness and good health of her children.

INTEREST IN ADVERTISING

ADVERTISING is the romance of business. Display to attract, interest to hold the attention, sense to appeal to the quality of judgment—all these and more are the reasons that advertising is the great force in business that it is. In the old days it was thought that all that was necessary was to display the ad so that the reader "couldn't help seeing it."

This is good as far as it goes, but a pile of bricks in the road might bring the same result. What the public wants is some use for the bricks. More people are reading advertisements now than ever before in the history of business, because ad-copy is advancing in quality and interest the same as news, editorials and features. But it does not take a genius to write good advertising copy. Any intelligent business man or his neighbor's daughter can "put the right stuff into it" by continuous effort at satisfying the legitimate needs of buyers. Truth, crushed into advertising, will rise again into profits.

MODEL HOMES

THE building material makers are going to spend eight million dollars in 1926 on the construction of model homes in twenty-eight important cities. Their idea is to give the people an object lesson of good architecture, proper construction, and sound investment.

Many costly homes put up years ago could be compared to an overdressed and noisy woman. They flaunted their florid ornaments at you, until you longed for some simple old dwelling whose plain face suggested repose and dignity. One would say the owners had more money than education.

Today the new houses being built everywhere are not so gaudy, and they look more like real homes. Many of them, however, are not well built. While many of the houses built fifty years ago are still in excellent condition, some of the modern ones may not last a third of that time. If they go to pieces so soon, a heavy charge must be added annually for deteriotation.

Carmel property owners who plan to erect homes would do well to obtain information as to the elements that constitute a model home. Substantial construction reduces depreciation charges, and an artistic plan produces a charming home to which its possessors become deeply attached.

Zez Confrey Mixes Salads and Songs

Zez Confrey, famous composer of the musical classic, "The Kitten on the Keys," is hailed by his friends as the most versatile of America's popular song composers. Those who know him say he can mix a salad or a song oddity with equal success, which is saying considerable since his portrayal of the delightful pranks of a certain young feline frisking over the ivories has been recognized as the model of American syncopation.

Zez Confrey.

But Mr. Confrey has other "firsts" in his repertoire, his acquaintances declare. Country bred, he is a judge of horse flesh, and also knows a good cigar.

The simple life is Mr. Confrey's idea of happiness. Every so often Manhattan gets too crowded for him and he boards a train for the country and the companionship of a certain murmuring brook. Inevitably he comes back with one of the merry tunes for which he is noted.

A bachelor, Zez keeps open house for his friends. If he invites a few of the boys over for a midnight supper, he does the cooking himself. Invitations to his lively little dinners are sought after. There are two dishes to which Mr. Confrey is partial. So are his friends. His recipes for the two follow:

Royal Eggs With Mushroom Sauce.

12 eggs
Salt
Pepper
1-2 pound mushrooms
1 slice pimento
2 tbsp. butter
12 slices toast
1½ cup evaporated milk diluted with
1½ cup meat stock (This may be prepared from bouillon cubes)
2 tbsp. flour
Parsley

Saute the mushrooms in two tbsp. butter, taking care not to burn; make a white sauce of two tbsp. butter, flour, evaporated milk and meat stock. Cook five minutes. Add the cooked mushrooms and chopped pimento. Break eggs and drop into hot fat, being careful to keep egg in a globular mass. Just as soon as they are a golden brown lift out and drain. Place an egg on each piece of toast. Allow two pieces for each serving. Pour over all the mushroom sauce and garnish with parsley.

Pineapple-Cheese Salad.

10 slices pineapple
1 cup cream cheese
¼ cup chopped nuts
2 tbsp. evaporated milk
Crisp lettuce leaves
1 tbsp. pineapple juice
1 tsp. sugar
Green and red mangoes
Creamy salad dressing

Combine the cheese, nuts, evaporated milk, pineapple juice and sugar, and blend into a smooth mass. Cut pineapple circles in half. Spread cheese mixture on a slice of pineapple and press the other half circle of pineapple on top of cheese as one would a slice of bread in making a sandwich. Cut diamonds or triangles from green and red mangoes and press into the edge of the cheese mixture between the pineapple. Lay two of the prepared pieces of pineapple on a crisp lettuce leaf. Serve with creamy salad dressing. This serves five.

The Carmel Masonic Club held an interesting social and business meeting on Tuesday evening. The most important business transacted was the decision to incorporate the organization, and to this end a committee was appointed.

By the recent purchase of property in southern Monterey county and northern San Luis Obispo county, the holdings of William Randolph Hearst in the two counties have reached 300,000 acres. The Carmel-San Simeon highway passes through much of this land.

W. A. Dontanville, who has the contract for laying the streets, curbs and gutters in the Hatton Fields tract, is the contractor who laid the highway on San Carlos avenue to the southern boundary line of Carmel.

In accordance with request made by the Carmel trustees some time ago, and at the suggestion of Dr. H. D. Main, the Monterey county board of supervisors Monday authorized the chairman of the board to enter an agreement with the Carmel city trustees providing for the extension of the county health jurisdiction to Carmel.

The local Reading Circle will be discontinued until further notice.

Mrs. Hotchkiss is here from Berkeley, the guest of her mother, Mrs. Ninola Locan, for several weeks.

Mrs. Willie Dunn of San Francisco, wife of the noted golf expert, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Anderson here.

There was a wedding in Carmel last Tuesday. Mrs. Marian Jewett and Lieut. Chester Conlin were the contracting parties.

When "Dulcy" goes on at the Golden Bough shortly, Eric Wilkinson will play one of the leading parts. He played an important role in the Santa Barbara production of the play.

Friends and neighbors are shaking hands with Miss Tilly Polak this week. She has just returned from a several months' trip in Europe. Her shop is enriched by many beautiful objects.

Representative of the Monterey Sales Co., handling Studebaker motor cars and Morland trucks, is H. L. Palmer. Mr. Palmer and his family reside in this city. His sales territory covers the entire Monterey Peninsula and Carmel Highlands.

Mrs. Frederick H. Steele and young son arrived in San Francisco last week on the President Wilson from China, and are now in Carmel, visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Butcher, on Carmel and Eighth Street. Mr. Steele will join her early in June.

The Monterey Chapter of the Izaak Walton League of America is strongly "at bat" to have the name of the "Monterey Forest" restored to that huge forest tract occupying the southern portion of Monterey county and now known as a part of the Santa Barbara National Forest for "convenience of administration" in Washington, D. C.

Word has been received from Mrs. Gertrude Nelson Andrews of Hollywood that she has just returned from a three months' lecture tour through New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and other eastern cities. She expects to come to Carmel some time next month.

PERFORMANCE REVEALS WHAT PRICE CONCEALS

Only performance can tell you whether a car is built to deliver satisfaction, or whether something has been sacrificed to achieve the lure of a low first price.

Low price may interest you, but only when you drive an Oldsmobile Six can you realize how far an automobile so moderately priced can exceed your expectations.
